

My name is Megan Spranger and I am a senior here at Lakewood Ranch High School. I am enrolled in the journalism course because I have a passion for writing. Some extracurricular activities I am a part of are working at a pottery painting studio, participating in local art and volunteer events, and going on small adventures with my friends. I like LRHS because our school has a grandiose selection of teachers that make it their mission to impact their student's lives. One goal that I have for high school is a goal that many other students in Arts Collaboration have, which is rethinking high school. A lot of students see high school as just a pass of time, I would like to help in the movement "Rethink High School" to encourage students to picture high school as much more than just a place holder before college.
